

Pterodon emarginatus

Pterodon emarginatus (Portuguese: sucupira-branca) is a Brazilian legume of the Cerrado.^[3] Widely distributed in the west of Minas Gerais and in Goiás, Brazil, the fruit oil of this plant is used to deter skin penetration by Schistosoma cercariae.^[citation needed]

This Faboideae-related article is a stub. You can help Wikipedia by expanding it.

