

Prunus schlechteri

Prunus schlechteri, aimangelo, is a species of Prunus native to New Guinea and the Solomon Islands. It is a tree reaching 35 m.^[1] Native peoples chew a pulp of its bark to alleviate the pain of toothaches or apply it externally to relieve aching muscles.^{[2][3]}

This Prunus article is a stub. You can help Wikipedia by expanding it.

